In Carmel, people often have trouble directing other people to where they live or where their business is. But seldom can they accomplish it as virtuously as Kay Lawlor, who has a used book store on Mission, next door to the grocery store. She tells people, "I'm the next thing to Purity."

Does Lyndal Holman sound like an evangelist when he says—someone must have heard him say it—"I work for Purity"?

Does Mr. Safeway sound immoral when he responds, "I don't fear Purity"?

Do you wish that I would get on to something else? Very well.

I've thought of a title for a posthumous novel by F. Scott Fitzgerald: The World Is A-broad.

Do you still wish that I would get on to something else? Very well.

A young Swedish girl, in this country on a scholarship, and working in a laboratory, observed Americans with curiosity and considerable energy. Then she wrote home to her mother: "There are three things that Americans fear: Communism, germs and naked women."

Very well.

Thanksgiving was an infatuating day. In the autumn the sunlight strikes low and golden. Long shadows form, imposing dark bands across the streets and gardens. Fragile cirrus and cumulus clouds drift high and white above the upward-thrusting tops of pines. Stillness and a gentle warmth imbue the afternoon.

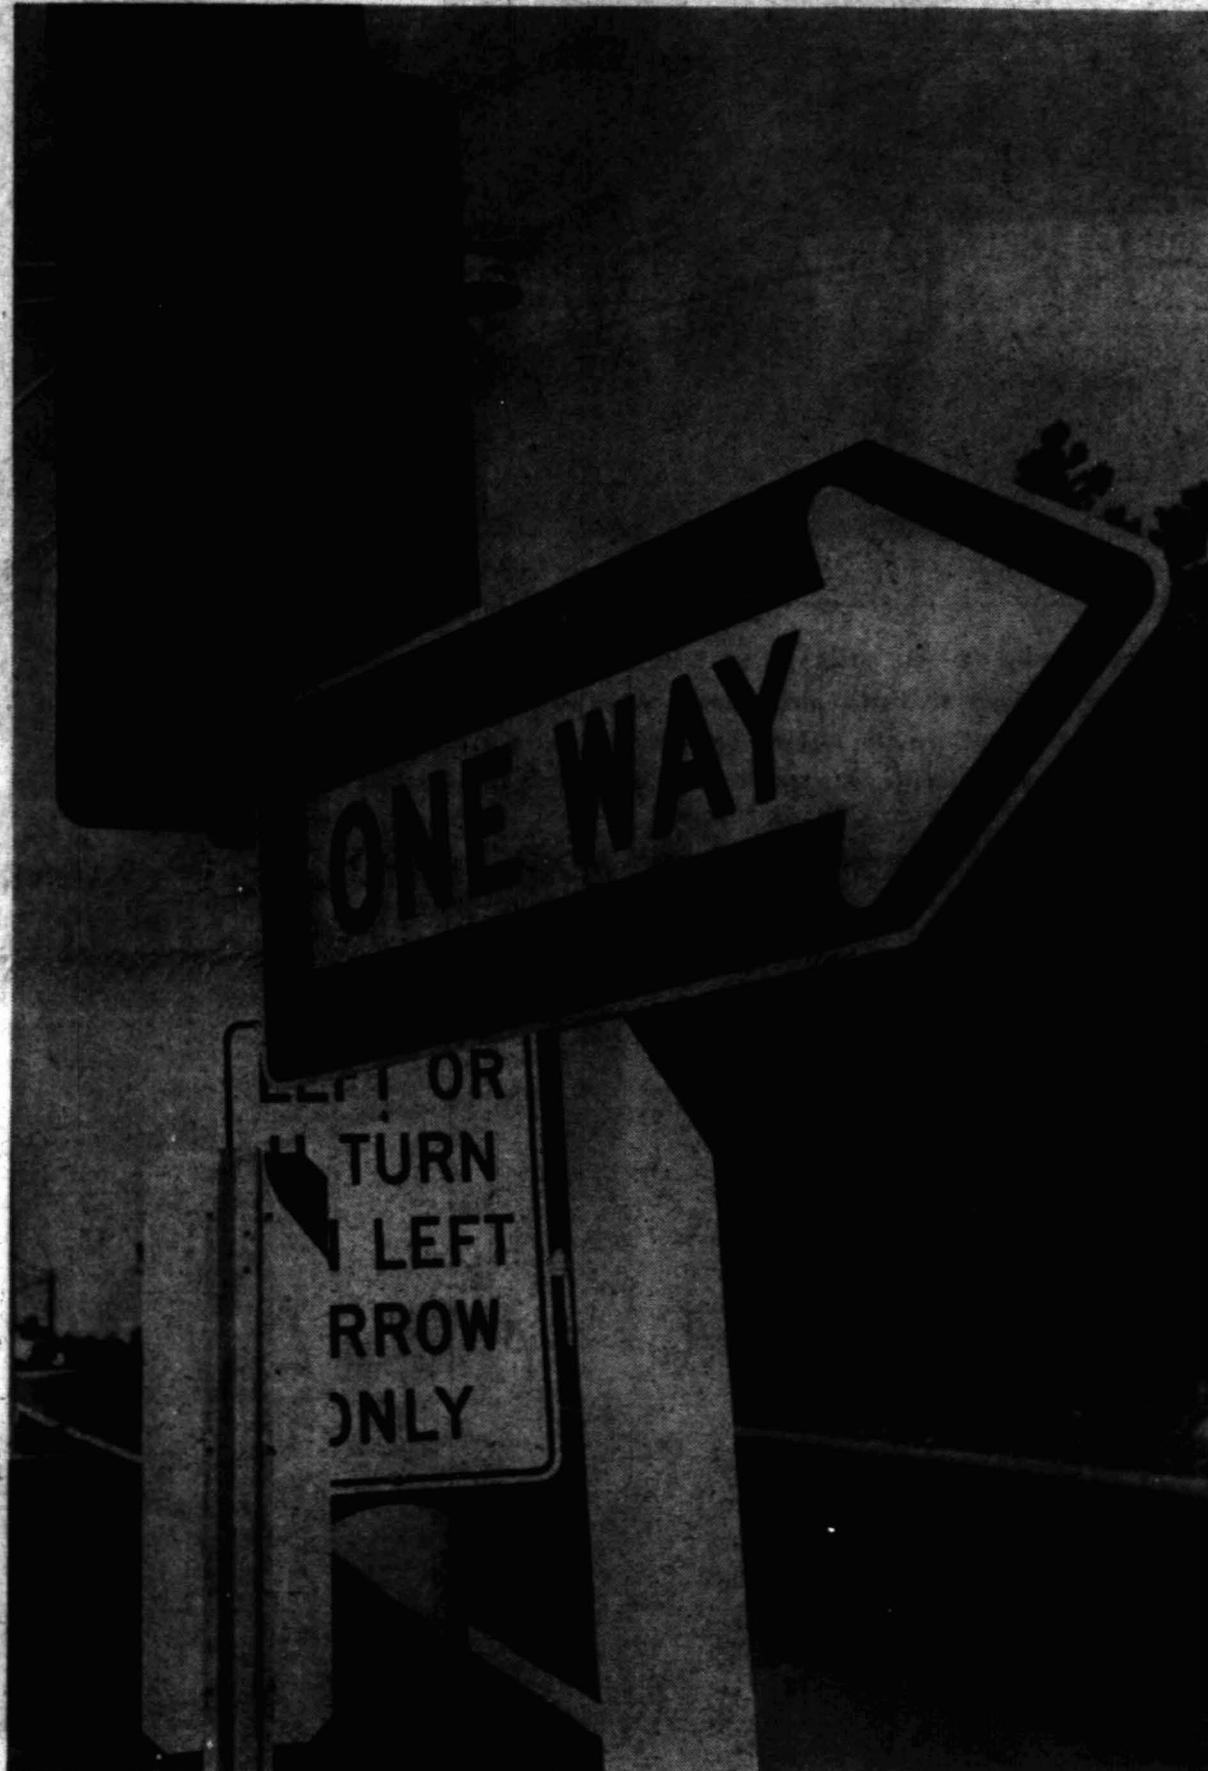

Such a day, particularly when it is Thanksgiving, has a soft joyousness, troubled with melancholy, hope, comfort and a wordless sadness for something inexpressible and lost long ago. It is a time when we embrace our dreams, draw together with friends. Or seek out small solaces to sit at table with our loneliness.

It is a day when most of us can interrupt our pursuits with quiet celebration. We sleep late. We watch football games on television. We don't eat much breakfast. And maybe do without lunch altogether. Great things happen in the kitchen; boiling, baking, roasting things redolent with piquant odors and seductive flavors. It's a time for table cloths and sterling and china, instead of place mats, stainless steel and stoneware. It's also a time for candles, and flowers on the table. And the most delicious, soporific distress afterwards. Idealistically and traditionally, it is most of this, or all of it, for most of us.

But there are others. And they work that day, because this complicated society of ours never stops. Its momentum, our habits, our civilized complications simply will not come so abruptly or so completely to a halt in the space of a day that nothing moves. It is a subdued running on and assurance of tomorrow. So, some people work.

At the fire house, waiting for the usual holiday fire, Lee McGuckin and Paul Artellan were on duty. Some of the volunteers dropped in early in the morning. They cooked

The Planning commission yesterday granted to Royden Martin a use permit amendment separating by 4 hours any theatrical entertainment and the serving of beer and wine with meals at the Studio Theatre on Dolores Street. But the appearance of attorney Elwood Wilson, representing Michael Franke, signalled a flight to rescind the action. FUN WITH TOURISTS

Visitors Association Makes It Pay.

Have you been having much fun lately? Hm?

If you haven't, you're a sorely disturbing contradiction in a hedonistic world that the Visitors Association of the Monterey Peninsula is trying to purvey to something like 46,000,000 people.

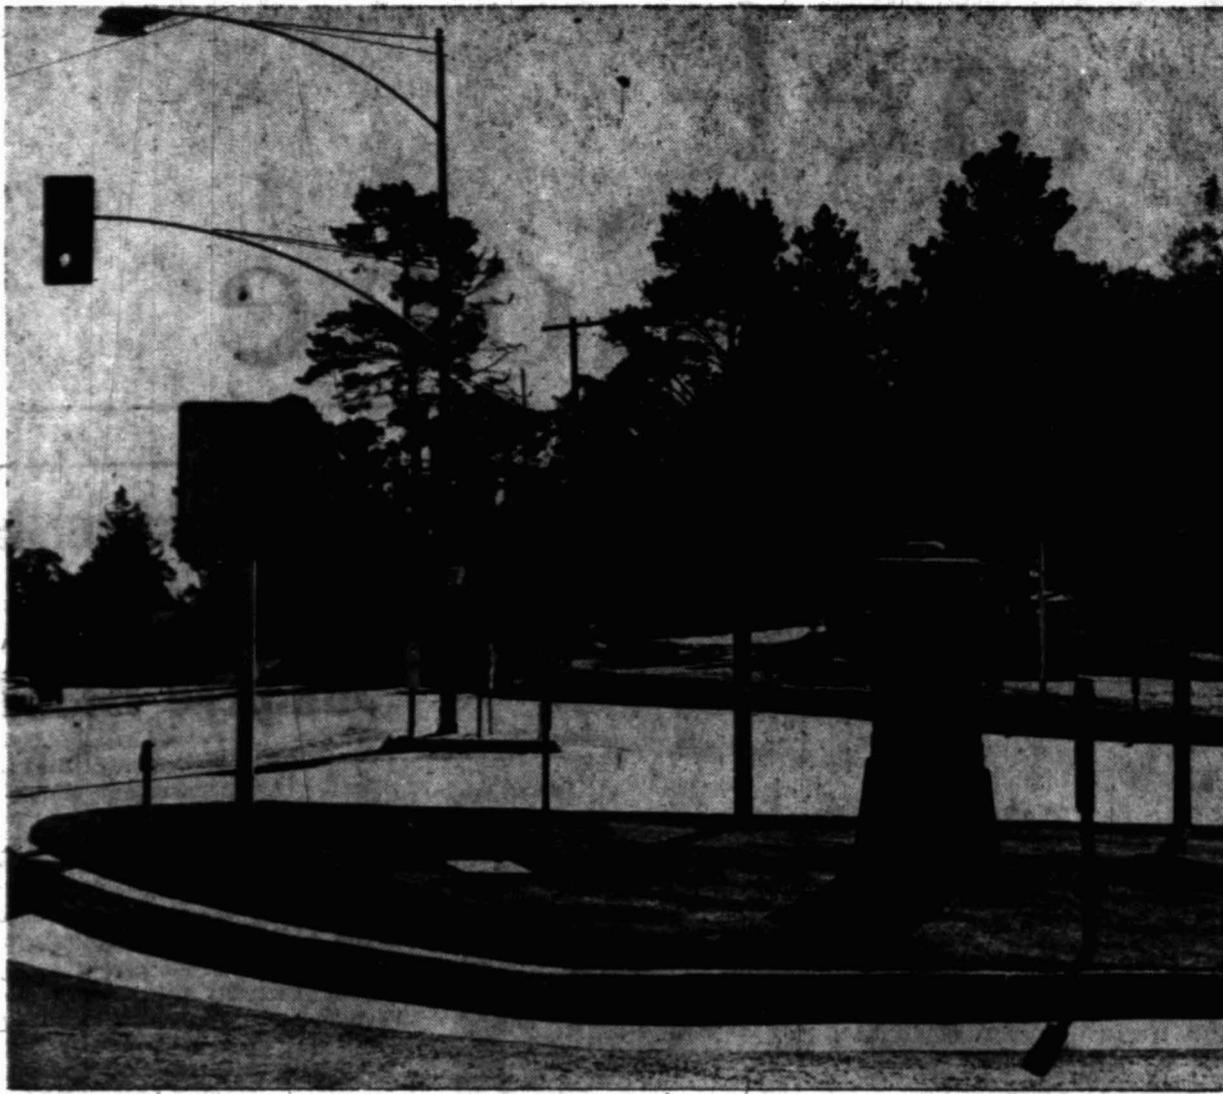

It's FUN time ALL the time on the Monterey Peninsula!

This roguish message, VAMP at the Spindrift on Tuesday, is being earnestly advertised as such publications as Time and Sunset magazines, the Wall Street Journal and the Christian Science Monitor, the New York Times, and daily newspapers in San Francisco, Los Angeles and Seattle.

To Los Angeles, where people are most apt to sit glumly, staring through the smoggy gloom at the fiercely inconsequential goings-on of their TV sets, VAMP has excitedly brought the message of FUN! on the peninsula with two thirty-minute films — one about

THIS IS THE QUAINT NEW ENTRANCE TO THE VILLAGE OF CARMEL. Nestled among the pines, squirrels and traffic signals, it beckons alluringly to visitor and resident alike. STOP! or NO! or DONT' or [REDACTED] it says. To make sure you get the word, the nice highway people have erected 83 things in the ground which bear 54 banks of reflectors, 4 flashing lights, 34 signs, 8 banks of signals and 5 street lights. You should get so lost.

INSIDE CARMEL, such progress would not be possible. Because there are very strict sign regulations. But outside, WOW! People used to think that Carmel was opposed to progress. This page proves how really progressive we are. Progressively worse. [REDACTED]

MUSHROOM DEATH

A death from mushroom poisoning in Santa Cruz County last week has caused Dr. Myron B. Husband, director of public health for Monterey County, to repeat previous warnings about the danger of eating mushrooms gathered on hillsides or fields.

Winter rains bring forth mushrooms and toadstools in profusion, and while many are edible, the poisonous varieties are also present, he advises. Even experts have difficulty distinguishing between edible and non-edible types, Dr. Husband stresses, and adds that placing a silver spoon or coin in the pot in which mushrooms are cooked or washed is not a reliable safety test.

The safest procedure, he says, is not to collect mushrooms at all, but to buy cultured mushrooms sold in food markets. These are safe and the cost is not prohibitive.

DAVENPORT DINNER

Monterey County's sheriff-elect, Jack Davenport, will be honored at a dinner, open to the public, on Sunday evening in the Hunt Club at the Fairgrounds in Monterey. A no-host cocktail party at 4 p.m. will precede the steak dinner at 5 p.m., according to George Dovolis, chairman of the event sponsored by Davenport's fellow Kiwanians.

Tickets are $5.00 and may be purchased in Carmel at Earl Glennon's Sports Shop or Ailing House Pest Control.

(Continued from Page One) up breakfast, ate, drank coffee, and chewed the fat, an honorable pastime around a fire house, where there is always waiting and expectation. But nothing happened. For the second Thanksgiving in a row. It was a very quiet day at the firehouse.

It was not quiet at Ted's liquor store on Dolores Street. It was, in fact very busy. A lot of wine was sold. There were tales of unexpected guests. But people were not nearly in as much of a hurry as usual. They had, perhaps, just this one thing to do. They browsed a lot, observed Al Yensan, who worked alone that day. "This is the fifth year I've worked on Thanksgiving. But I don't mind. The family is all grown up. And after all, Thanksgiving is when you have it. We had ours Saturday night."

Scott Bennett, who works for Brad Wayland at the Chevron station up on Junipero, had his Thanksgiving Sunday night. He worked Thursday so this could be arranged. It was sort of a half day. The station opened at 10:00 a.m. and closed at 4:00 p.m. They were busy until about 1:00 p.m., "mostly with local people, just sort of killing time until the bird was ready," Brad said. The day was kind of a gesture, but some people would have been bewildered and slightly disappointed if the station hadn't been open.

Ray Menes is a waiter at Pine Inn. I said, when I saw him the other day, "Have a nice Thanksgiving, Ray?" with that sort of conversational courtesy which has the same degree of polite disinterest as when people asked how they are feeling.

"I went to work at 1:00 p.m. and worked until 10:00 p.m. We served eight hundred meals in that time. I went home and slept a long time." He smiled, and was amused.

I will learn not to expect everything to be "nice" for everyone.

Towards sunset I drove along the beach. By then most things were in heavy silhouette. A shred of cloud was strung blackly across the orange confusion where the sun had gone down. The air was still, but no longer warm. The waves that plopped on the shore were pensive.

A man got up from a bench as I went by, turned once again to look out to sea, then walked alone down the gloomy avenue of cypress to somewhere that seemed awfully unimportant. His Thanksgiving day, perhaps, did not fall into the "nice" category, either.

VALLEY SUBDIVISION CONTRACT

The State Public Utilities Commission on Tuesday approved an agreement between the California Water and Telephone Company and Paul Porter, owner of 475 acres of land in Carmel Valley, which he intends to subdivide and which will require domestic water service.

Known as Rancho Tierra Grande No. 1, the subdivision will contain 57 lots. Porter agreed, among other things, to pay in advance the estimated cost of the water system, $54,900. This sum will also provide pumping, main and storage capacity for future subdivision units.

The PUC decided no public hearing was needed on this matter, and the agreement will be effective 7 December when the water company is authorized to begin work.

The Koebigs Enjoyed Canada

"The roads are marvelous, the scenery beautiful, no litter along the highways and hardly a billboard," says Kurt J. Koebig of a recent motor trip across Canada.

He and Mrs. Koebig flew to Lansing, Michigan, picked up a new car and headed West by way of Niagara. "From our hotel window we watched the lights playing on the falls at night." They saw Ontario, Winnipeg—"a lively, attractive city"; Banff—"like a Swiss village nestled in the mountains"; Lake Louise and Jasper; Victoria. Then came the down the Pacific coast to California.

Bypassing most of the cities, they saw "hundreds of lakes," also glimpsed antelope, elk, moose, bear and mountain sheep.

Reflected Glory

Carmelites of various ages recognized themselves in a picture in last week's Time magazine illustrating a cover story on folk singers. Identifiable in the group listening to Joan Baez singing in the Ephraim Doners' Carmel Highlands patio are Jack Wickham, Marilyn Swim, Peggy Newton, Alison Miller, Janie Miller, Laura Duskin, and (partly hidden in the fold of the page) Molly Williams.

The commission also approved plans for a new Shell Oil Co. service station at San Carlos and Fifth avenue and a 450-seat motion picture theater on Mission street near Eighth Avenue.

An "overlay" zone legitimizing most of the service stations in town has come nearer to reality with the action of the commission to order the drafting of an ordinance to be set for later public hearings.

William T. Moore Retires

At the board of directors meeting of Del Monte Properties Company in San Francisco two weeks ago, it was announced by the company's president, Richard Osborne, that William T. Moore, a vice president and head of the Pacific Grove division, will retire from active service but will remain as consultant to the firm he has served for 56 years.

In 1906 Moore came to the Monterey Peninsula and joined the engineering department of the Pacific Improvement Company. In 1919, when the company sold its interests to the newly organized Del Monte Properties Company, he continued as chief engineer.

Hugh H. Bein, of the Monterey Peninsula Country Club, was named a vice president of the company and head of the Pacific Grove division. He has headed the Del Monte Sand Department since 1954.

Donald C. Tibbals, who was chief of the road and forest maintenance division from 1957 to 1959, will return to Pebble Beach from Colorado to head the sand department.

Tick-Tock

In spite of these giddy goings-on, the board, nevertheless, managed to transact some business, authorizing the administration to negotiate for the district's liability insurance, instead of calling for bids. But all eyes were on the clock, and nothing much more was attempted.

OBITUARIESMabel Campbell

Mrs. Mabel Phelps Campbell, widow of Argyll Campbell, former city attorney for Carmel, and the mother of Superior Court Judge Gordon Campbell and John D. Campbell, an instructor at Monterey High School, died on 21 November in a local rest home. She was 82 years old and had been in failing health for some time.

Mrs. Campbell had lived in Carmel for 48 years. She was born in Wausau, Wisconsin, on 21 August, 1880. When she was four years old she came with her parents to California and was educated and later married her husband in San Jose.

In 1914, Mrs. Campbell with her husband and two young sons came to live in Carmel. Mr. Campbell was one of the most active and respected attorneys on the Monterey Peninsula before his death on 24 November, 1943. During the 15 years he was city attorney for Carmel, Argyll Campbell framed the zoning ordinance which protected the character of this community from undesirable development. He also was a former city attorney of both Monterey and Pacific Grove.

In addition to her sons who live in Carmel, Mrs. Campbell is survived by a sister, Mrs. John Wolf-

Rosary, recited in Paul Funeral Chapel, was followed on 23 November by a requiem mass in San Carlos Church, Monterey, celebrated by the Reverend Father Lawrence Farrell, a friend of the Campbell family for many years. Burial was in the family plot in Monterey Cemetery.

Will M. Hough

Will M. Hough died here on 20 November following a long period of failing health. Famed for over half a century as a prolific comic opera librettist, lyricist, and author of 56 vaudeville acts for the old Keith-Orpheum circuit, Mr. Hough composed that ever popular song, I Wonder Who's Kissing Her Now.

Born 22 August, 1882, in Chicago, Illinois, Mr. Hough received his education in English and psychology at the University of Chicago. While there he and Frank Adams, with whom he was writing at the time, met composer Joe Howard. This led to the long series of Hough-Adams-Howard comic operas, opening first in Chicago, and later on Broadway.

The Princess Theatre was built at a cost of half a million dollars in Chicago for the staging of Mr. Hough's musicals. The biggest hit of the Hough-Adams team was The Time, The Place And The Girl, written in Cuba, and which played a year in Chicago and for ten years on tour after its New York and Boston successes.

Mr. Hough first visited Carmel in 1906, and returned from time to time for other visits since the mid-30s. With his wife, the former Eve Baber of Pasadena, he came in 1955 to make a permanent home here, living first in Sand and Sea, near the ocean, and more recently on Carmel Hill Drive.

In addition to his wife, Mr. Hough leaves a son, Gordon Lord Hough, and a daughter, Miss Carol Hough, both of New York; and two brothers, T. E. Hough of Winnetka, Illinois, and Charles V. Hough of Carmel Valley.

Services were held 24 November in the Paul Funeral Chapel, with Dr. K. Filmore Gray of the Church of the Wayfarer officiating.

Kathleen Kennedy

Kathleen Kennedy died in San Francisco 27 November, 1962. She was the daughter of Mrs. Alice Hawkhurst Kennedy and the late Ronald Clark Kennedy. Graveside services were held 29 November in Mountain View Cemetery, Oakland. Memorial remembrances may be made to the Heart Association.

BUSY FRIDAY BOOMS BUSINESS

No observer of Ocean Avenue last Friday could escape a sense of great activity. Following Thanksgiving Thursday, when the village drowsed and it was evident that most everyone was at home, Friday burst on the commercial scene with almost frenetic intensity, as people poured in from out of town, mingling with villagers on the sidewalks and in the streets in busy and frequently chaotic confusion that seemed to signify something of a boom in the thronging stores and shops.

The Pine Cone asked a representative sampling of merchants for their observations on business on that bustling day:

Frank Putnam said, "Without a doubt, it was the busiest Friday after Thanksgiving that we have experienced at Putnam & Raggett since we opened the store."

"How did business go on the day after Thanksgiving?" we asked Courtney Brunn, owner of Mark Fenwick, a women's sports apparel shop in Carmel Plaza.

"Swimmingly," she responded enthusiastically. "Percentagewise there was a good healthy increase over business the same day last year; in fact, Friday was one of the best days in the year for us."

Mrs. Brunn noticed, in her shop, a combination of persons shopping for Christmas with persons buying for college age and high school daughters vacationing here with parents. "Saturday was a big day, too," she volunteered.

"How did you feel when you closed the shop on Friday?" was the last question we asked Courtney. "Very exhilarated," she retorted quickly. "The girls in the store were tired from the tremendous pace, but they loved the exciting activity of the day," she ended.

"They stampeded me," declares James Womble of the rush of shoppers to his Ocean Avenue pharmacy on Friday. "Twenty-five per cent of them were shopping for Christmas; 80 per cent were from out of town," he estimated.

"It was crazy that week end," he claims, but Friday was a "terrific" day for his business and when closing time came he "felt like a new man."

"We were mobbed," Mrs. Louis Staples, co-owner with her husband of Spencer's House of Cards, reports about shopping the day after Thanksgiving and on Saturday. "It was my first experience in Carmel with Christmas shoppers," she continued, "but the staff tells me the buying in this store was unusually heavy last week end and that most of the shoppers were from out of town and were buying Christmas gifts."

At the end of Friday, Mrs. Staples reports it was a little hard to tell just exactly how she felt, but she was aware of being "worn out and happy at the same time."

Buying in Derek Rayne Limited, Importers, was a little ahead of the day after Thanksgiving last year, Derek Rayne reports on Friday's sales in this exclusive clothing store, and adds that Friday's sales "strangely enough exceeded Saturday's."

Eighty per cent of the patrons of the Rayne shops were from out of town, he noticed. "Carmel people haven't begun to shop for Christmas yet," he observes. Bulk of Friday's sales were Christmas presents, but, says Mr. Rayne, "As occurs on any long week end, many people came to Carmel and seized the opportunity to shop for themselves, too."

"That would be telling," was his answer to the question about how he felt at the end of Friday's heavy shopping.

Book buyers filled the Wells' Bookstore Friday, also on Saturday, and purchases equalled sales records for any day during the year except days immediately before Christmas last year, Henry Williams, owner of the Ocean Avenue business reports.

"Thirty-eight to 50 per cent of the sales were Christmas gifts," he states, and adds that his staff was busy gift-wrapping and packaging books for mailing.

Asked how he felt at the end of the first day of Christmas shopping, Henry replied, "Fine," and added he felt the same way on Saturday. Monday's sales were down a little in his bookshop, but by Tuesday afternoon the temporary slump was over and he felt "even better than on Friday."

Tom Tousey of Camera Crafts reports he was glad when Friday was over. All day long tourists had "swamped" him with business which included little in the way of Christmas present purchases, but an incredible number of sales of routine photographic supplies such as films and flashbulbs. At the end of the day, he felt as though this buying had been "too much. By then I wished all the tourists would stay out of town and leave me to serve the townspeople from now on," he says, but acknowledges Friday was a "good day for business."

The day after Thanksgiving was a "very, very lucrative day" for Leidig's gas station and automotive repair business, owner Dale Leidig announces.

"Many more people than usual came to purchase gas," he says. "They also bought tires, batteries and accessories, asked for lube and repair jobs, too," he marvels. Mr. Leidig's business is not patronized by Christmas gift shoppers, of course, but he was "tired and happy," at the end of Friday, and this was caused "mostly by out of town people."

Customers crowded California Music House Friday, Milan Herben, proprietor of the record shop says. Buying "was considerably better than the comparable day last year," in fact, it was one of the best days for sales all year long in the music shop.

"Easily 80 per cent of the customers were from out of town," Mr. Herben noticed, and there was no evidence that they were buying for Christmas. "Generally, not," he emphasizes.

If Friday is any indication of what will happen the rest of the Christmas season, 1962 will be a record year for Carmel merchants, he believes. His reaction to his busy first day of Christmas shopping was, "Tired, but pleasantly surprised."

HEALTH INSURANCE PAYMENTS UP

Health insurance benefit payments by insurance companies in 1962 are running 12 per cent ahead of last year, the Health Insurance Institute reported today.

In the first nine months of 1962 insurance companies distributed an estimated $2,917,000,000 in benefits to persons covered by health insurance policies, an increase of 12.4 per cent over the $2,595,000,000 paid out in the same period of 1961.

The greatest amount of benefits was paid out to help cover the costs

MUTUAL FUNDS

In all of the publicity about mutual funds and their performance relative to individual stocks, little is said about one of their main features, and that is the convenience of holding mutual fund shares.

When you realize that one share of an investment company, commonly known as a mutual fund, represents a proportionate investment in from fifty to one hundred individual corporations, the convenience of owning these mutual fund shares should be evident.

Investors in mutual fund shares not only enjoy all of the benefits of a widely diversified list of securities, but they can have all of the routine servicing of their investment handled by a bank as one of the regular services of the fund. Each mutual fund designates a particular bank to handle its investors' accounts. The bank will collect and reinvest dividends paid by the fund, and it will hold the certificates for the investor.

One of the great intangible benefits of a mutual fund is this provision for immediately reinvesting dividends. There is no dormant period with this type of investment money. The dividends are reinvested at once, instead of lying idle in a checking account awaiting a future investment decision, or pending the accumulation of adequate funds for a further investment. The bank will buy additional shares in the fund simultaneously with the payment of the dividend on the existing fund shares. The cumulative effect of reinvesting dividends can be a very substantial increase in the total investment over a period of time.

What about the cost of all this service?

After the initial sales charge, some funds have an annual expense of less than $.25 per hundred dollars invested, based on the average net asset value of the shares during the year. This means that it costs the shareholder less than $2.50 per $1,000 invested; $25.00 per $10,000; $250.00 per $100,000, and so on, as a yearly cost of servicing his investment.

Of course, one does not have to take advantage of these extra services. He can invest outright in mutual fund shares, keep his certificates, and collect his dividends. But he still has available a complete investment service that hardly can be compared with an investment in individual stocks.

of hospital care. The Institute said the $1,163,000,000 paid under hospital expense policies in the first nine months of 1962 was an increase of 13.1 per cent over the $1,028,000,000 paid out in the same period of 1961.

The greatest percentage increase was shown by major medical expense insurance, which provides benefits ranging from $5,000 to $15,000 or more to help offset the cost of serious illness. The nine-month figures have major medical benefits climbing from $423 million to $516 million, an increase of 22 per cent. Major medical benefits pay for virtually all types of medical services prescribed by a

Art Can Never Prove Anything

A MOST UNUSUAL THESIS on the potency of art, or its applicability, is developed by Mr. Michael Tanner, distinguished lecturer in philosophy at Cambridge University, whose paper, The Middle Way in Literary Criticism, appeared in a recent issue of THE LISTENER, a publication of the British Broadcasting Co.

The burden of Tanner's talk had to do with the conflict between didacticism and aestheticism in the art of literary criticism; in other words, whether the work is important because of what it says, or is important because of the way in which it is said.

But possibly the most fascinating argument he develops lies in the paragraph entitled, Persuasive Power of Art:

FROM A LIBRARIAN'S NOTEBOOK

By Ruth Galvin Thorburg

A new book by naturalist Edwin Way Teale is called The Strange Lives of Familiar Insects. In this book he discusses the lives of 14 familiar insects with his customary kindly attitude toward his subjects, treating them as if they were all delightful little creatures. They are not! One chapter is on the termite family and it seems he might have used a few adjectives beginning with D, such as dastardly, devilish, and deceitful, but he refrained. This is a chapter you should read and by doing so gain an understanding of the army which is doing its best to pull down your house around your ears. These bugs are organized!

Catherine the Great, Autocrat and Empress of All Russia is the full title of a book by Ian Grey, the author of an earlier book entitled Peter The Great. He is an Australian who has spent much time in Russia. His writing is on the scholarly side, attended by many footnotes and historical addenda, but these, too, are interesting. An index helps the reader locate information on persons and events. The unfortunate thing about the book is its make-up, for the type is rather small and the lines of type closely spaced. Use your reading glass; if you have one, and save your eyes with this one.

For dog fanciers, we have a revised edition of the Standard Book of Dog Care and Training by Jeanette Cross. The format of the book may prove annoying to some because much of it is in the question-and-answer type, and this is difficult to use as reference. For straight reading, it is interesting and informative. Descriptions of breeds are accompanied by pictures and this section of the book is in the customary informational form.

Fighter Floyd Patterson was third in a family of 11 children. As a small child he was confused in mind, fearful, and always mixed up in some trouble. Finally he was sent to Wiltwyck school for delinquent boys and it was while he was a student there that he began to straighten out. He took up boxing and in time he won the championship. He was the only man to loose the heavyweight championship and then regain it again. With the help of Milton Gross he has written his life story and called it Victory Over Myself, which indeed it seems to have been. This is the poignant story of a bad boy who made good.

The McGraw-Hill Book Company is beginning the publishing of a series called The American Trails Series, and the editor is A. B. Guthrie. This library will buy the books as they are published. The first one is by Felix Reisenburg, Jr., and is entitled The Golden Road. It is the story of the California Mission Trail and it is also a history of California. The trail was called El Camino Real and the highway is called so today. Twice in the book the author translates this as the King's Highway, but according to Professor Guude of the University of California this is an erroneous translation, and the words simply mean the main traveled public road. No doubt all roads belonged to the king in those days.

SOUND-POST

BY JACK BENSON

Among the many vacationers in Carmel this past week end were four gentlemen from Paris. Here for a brief pause in a busy life, they walked among the pines, along the beach and breathed the sea air. At night they heard the pounding surf. And then, suddenly, instinctively, they wanted to respond. With the spontaneity of great artists these four distinguished string players wanted to play, here in Carmel, for anyone.

They asked about other string players living here and were put in touch with the Reverend H. M. M. Nicholas, known to Carmelites as Father Nick, a fine violinist, a musician of boundless enthusiasm. The result, for the fortunate few he was able to reach at the last moment, was an incomparable evening of string quartet playing. The Reverend and Mrs. Nicholas graciously opened their home to the world famed Loewenguth Quartet.

In Carmel for just a few days, the quartet went on to San Francisco to give two concerts there last Sunday and Monday.

Alfred Loewenguth, director and first-violinist, organized the quartet in 1929. Since that time its fame has spread throughout Europe and the Americas, in concert and on recording. Loewenguth also has his own orchestra in Paris, composed of 150 young musicians between the ages of six and 16.

Cellist Roger Loewenguth, the director's brother, was for many years a member of the celebrated L'Orchestre de la Suisse Romande under Ernest Ansermet. Roger Roche, the violinist, teaches privately in Paris when he is not touring with the quartet, and Jacques Gotkovsky, the second violinist, has a farm 40 miles from the French capital. Alfred Loewenguth remarked that Monsieur Jacques had one other great love in his life besides music — "the good earth." Gotkovsky, a Russian by birth, will be an invaluable aid to the quartet next April when they perform in Moscow.

The concert which took place at the Nicholas home last Friday, in many ways was a musical revelation. At the conclusion of the first number, a lady whose entire life was dedicated to music remarked: "Why, I never realized that Haydn was so daring, so capricious, so... so brilliant!" And herein lies the greatness of the Loewenguth Quartet — the extraordinary ability to present a piece of music so fresh and alive that it is like a first hearing, familiar as this piece actually may be.

Before beginning each composition, Alfred Loewenguth, a medium-size man with a rectangular red mustache, and keen blue eyes, described the music with such ardent spirit that although one spoke little or no French everything was excitingly clear at once. And then, this, precisely, was what he and his colleagues did musically. It was as though they were saying, "Look, you may have heard this piece before, but not really; not until you have heard the way we feel about it." Whereupon, they would draw out all of its parts, lay them before the audience, and meticulously reassemble them, revealing a whole new work. They did this with Debussy's music as well as Haydn's.

Each member of the Loewenguth quartet was strongly individualistic, playing his own role in a manner that seemed exclusive, almost solitary. And yet, the ensemble was like something preordained, with that inexorable sense of "knowing," that rare and sweet rapport which marks a great string quartet. One hopes that some day soon, the Loewenguth Quartet may return to Carmel in an official capacity and perform before a very large audience.

Symphony Concert Almost Sold Out

There are less than 100 tickets available for the next concert by the Monterey County Symphony Orchestra. The orchestra will be heard in Carmel's Sunset Auditorium on 4 December, beginning at 8:30 p.m. and the preceding evening in the Salinas High School Auditorium at 8:15.

David Abel, a local as well as international concert favorite, will be heard as guest violinist in a performance of the Brahms' Concerto for Violin and Orchestra. In 1953, while in his mid-teens, Abel made his professional debut with the San Francisco Orchestra, and since has risen rapidly to the top rank of young violinists. Critics have called him a "young master of musical craft," "a violinist of tremendous artistry," and "first and foremost a musician." Abel, who has played here many times, gave his first concert in Carmel when he was 15 years old.

Other works to be heard on this next program include Haydn's Symphony 104 and Edward Applebaum's Concert Overture. The latter is one of the two winning compositions in the Composers Award Competition sponsored by the symphony last season.

Tickets for the Carmel performance are now available at Browse-Around Record Shop.

Daring Drama At Tantamount

The Tantamount Theatre opened last week end with an uncommon bill of fare — a play in one act, and an opera in two. Escurial by Michel de Ghelderode, and The Medium by Gian-Carlo Menotti make formidable demands upon players and audience alike, and their curious juxtaposition at the Tantamount is a bold stroke. But apart from any grand or profound analogies, one may respond to the play and the opera individually, accepting each as a highly challenging work.

This may well be the intent of the director of both dramas, Ted Huffman, whose deft and accomplished hand is felt throughout. No less accomplished was the acting of Francois Martin and John Ralph Geddis in Escurial. (Escurial was the name of one of the palaces of King Phillip of Spain in the 16th century.) Martin, as the King, and Geddis, as the clown, undertook their roles with marked intensity and devotion. One may have wished for more nobility in the king at first, however, so that his later disintegration be more ignoble. James Valentine played the Monk, and Frederick Charles, the Man in Scarlet.

As Madame Flora in Menotti's The Medium, Karen Steinke turned out the most impressive work of the night. And close by her was Sylvia Davis as Mrs. Gobineau. The difficult role of Toby, a mute, was convincingly done by John Graves, but Mary Kersting, as Monica, needs to work more with her voice if she is to carry off her part as the most prominent singer in the opera. Barbara Tuttle and Ted Huffman handled the parts of Mrs. Nolan and Mr. Gobineau successfully, while Camile Olaeta performed the piano score in fine dramatic style. Huffman, Geddis and Martin are to be complimented; further, for their beautifully designed sets in both productions. —J. B.

Jazz Band Concert At College Sunday

The Monterey Peninsula College Jazz Band, sponsored by the MPC Band Club, will present a concert of jazz Sunday, 2 December, 8:30 p.m. in the music hall on the campus.

The public is invited to attend. Tickets, at the price of 50 cents, will be available from any member of the band, or at the door on the evening of the concert, according to Jerry Coker, MPC music instructor and band director.

Featured on the first half of the program will be such numbers as A Taste of Honey, Round Midnight, Blues in F, Yesterdays (arranged by Coker) and Ezz-Thetic, composed by George Russell and Coker.

After an intermission, the band will play Barfly, composed by Coker and Al Cobine.

Patricia Coker, jazz vocalist, will sing three numbers: You'll Stay, a composition of her own; Jeanine, by Duke Jordan; and On Love, composed by Jerry Coker from a theme by Kahili Gibran.

The band will close the concert with Yama, composed by Jack Stock, one of its members; and Wall For Patrick, by Coker.

Members of the band are Bill Atwood, Jimmy Cole, Richie Miller and Phil DiGirolamo, trumpets; Tony Campise, Nick Williams, Jim Pickford and Norm Disher, saxophones; Geoffrey Sharp, Jack Stock and Nick Henares, trombones; Dean Kinney and Jim Zimmerman, rhythm.

Jazz Festival Plans In Monterey For 1963

Plans for the sixth annual Monterey Jazz Festival, to be held in 1963, the week end of 20-21-22 September, were announced last week by festival president Melvin J. Isenberger.

A new 7,000 seat arena, recently completed on the Monterey County Fairgrounds, will serve as the new home of the 1963 festival. Originally scheduled for completion in time for the fifth annual festival last September, the arena's construction was interrupted by a 43-day strike of the building trades.

Sabrina Fair Scores On Amiable Pursuit Of Comedy

BY LARRY ROSE

Writing a review of a play in which Ruth McElroy and Mason Wright star is like writing a critique on Versailles or the Champs Elysees: it's not altogether absurd, but it's quite apt to fall all over itself in an excess of joy. And when Marcia Rider joins the proposition, a challenge analogous to le Petit Trianon adds its dimension. The metaphors may be mixed, or possibly labored. But the intentions are of the best.

I could say at the beginning, go see it. Then you would not have to read any more. Except that I want not only to tell you why you should, I want to salute a clutch of superb actors and a fine production.

Sunday night was the last performance of the opening week end. By rights it should have played to a small and somnolent audience. But since opening night the box office has turned away more than a hundred people, and Sunday night played to a near capacity house which was as delighted and sincere as could be desired. The omens are most auspicious. And if March doesn't watch out, it won't be Ides by then to beware of but full houses.

Sabrina Fair is not above being trivial and it is almost unbearably precious. It would make a delightful fairy tale. But we are spared that anguish because Samuel Taylor, and not Hans Christian Andersen, wrote the dialogue. It is superb, flashing and witty dialogue stitched over a sturdy and reliable plot, together with stage business, character delineation and story structure that are thoroughly professional. It didn't storm Broadway; it enchanted Hollywood; and it will enrapture little theatre wherever it is essayed. The Golden Bough production is a good example of why the latter case will hold anywhere. Provided that such a bountiful of talent can be enrolled.

If Mason Wright and Ruth McElroy were to recite the alphabet, it would be a smash hit. They are so thoroughly versed in theatrical technique, so able in its manipulation, so abundantly charming, so instinctively obsessed with the amiable pursuit of the farther dimensions of brisk comedy that they make a good performance seem altogether like what it is not—easy. Their friendly fencing, the sharp the new arena is of modern design with a roof over the stands, graduated seating and a specially constructed acoustical shell on the bandstand.

The festival also announced plans for greatly increased dining facilities on the Fairgrounds during the five concert events next September.

thrust and riposte of their timing, their glistening phrasing, the brilliant compliment of their responsive expressions and movements do honor to their sensible delight in the art of acting.

The superb McElroy, and another glorious talent, Florence Dorsey, who is as elegantly ravishing in this show as I have ever seen her, do a marvelous job of getting through the tedious part of any play: the opening development of plot, scene and mood. They pitch the pace at once on a key of high, wry humor, and nobody has to spend the first act getting off the ground. It is airborne at once.

It is obvious from the beginning that, all of these delightful theatrical gymnastics notwithstanding, when fair Sabrina comes on the stage she had better carry her own bucket of water, or else everyone is going to drown in their own ebullition for want of justification.

But Marcia Rider, as Sabrina Fairchild, lets no one drown. As a matter of fact, she handles delightfully a role which could be childishly insipid. Piquant and petite, she carries off the love provocation and excitement of cultured innocence with remarkable spirit and good presence. (Marcia, dear Ted would beam with delight, I am sure.)

Clifford Anderson, as Fairchild, Sabrina's father, must also be saluted, though not until the last act, when the part gives him some latitude to make artificial as well as natural poise a pleasant stage device.

Talented Errol Allan, as Linus Larrabee, Jr., and Ronn Mullen, as David Larrabee, two wealthy and presumably sophisticated brothers, are forced to carry off rather poorly an abrupt and inexplicable infatuation for Sabrina. When David falls in love with Sabrina, his father, played by Mason Wright, says, "This would never have happened if he had gone to Harvard."

It would never have happened if David had gone even to high school.

I am not sure if the failure lies with scenario or direction. In any case, neither progression nor plausibility is developed. And when the other brother, Linus, Jr., emerges (unbelievably) from the evolution of the denouement with Sabrina's affection firmly in hand (they have supposedly been eagerly resisting one another through at least two acts) it is as if it were something resolved by IBM on a computer.

I believe that it is not a fault of the actors that they had to leap in and out of the situation so absurdly. I believe that it is the fault of whatever genius rode off on his plot without benefit of saddle or bridle.

There is a bird in the show. Nobody ever upstaged Ruth McElroy. But, I suspect, the bird is going to die trying. Or die for successfully trying. Even though Ruth is a good sport.

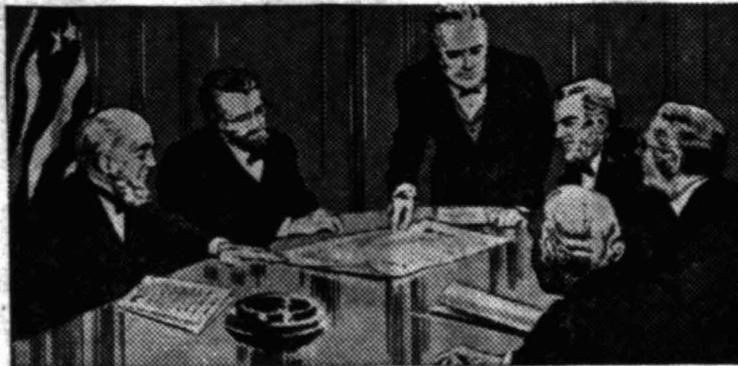

Barbara Tripp must be congratulated (I don't mean that it should sound begrudging) for creating an elegant and rich set without being fussy. But sit on the right as you enter, to get the fullest enjoyment of it.

I have followed Reed Putnam's subtle and effective lighting around a lot of theatres. He is not dismayed by any sort of technical problem, certainly not here. He lights the circle stage with considerable tact and talent.

And boy; how Nick Zanides sells those tickets!

It happened 100 YEARS ago

The oldest incorporated trade association in the country, the United States Brewers Association, was organized in 1862... the same year that

IN CALIFORNIA, the San Francisco Stock Exchange Board was founded, and opened to frenzied trading in the Virginia City mining stocks. Whether stocks went up or down, California's financiers knew that, for sparkling refreshment, beer was a good investment.

For them as now, beer was the traditional beverage of moderation. But beer means more than enjoyment to our state. The Brewing Industry pays more than 12 million dollars in taxes to the State of California each year, money that helps support our hospitals, schools and parks.

TODAY, in its centennial year, the United States Brewers Association still works constantly to assure maintenance of high standards of quality and propriety wherever beer and ale are served.

LAWYERS' WIVES

A theatre party to benefit the Legal Aid Society is being planned by the Lawyers' Wives of Monterey County, who will sponsor a first showing of the movie, The Loneliness Of The Long Distance Runner, at the Steinbeck Theatre on Tuesday.

Plans for a social gathering which will precede the movie at 7:30 p.m. have been completed by a committee including Mrs. William Bryan, Mrs. William L. Stewart, Mrs. Louis C. Moore, Mrs. William D. Curtis, and Mrs. Ralph W. Thompson. Tickets for the evening may be obtained from any of the Lawyers' Wives, or from Mrs. George Schroeder (FR 2-6306) or Mrs. G. Gervaise (FR 2-2024).

The British film stars Michael Redgrave and a new "discovery," Tom Courtenay. The story was adapted by Alan Sillitoe from his own short story, and photographed by Walter Lassally, who was cameraman for A Taste Of Honey. Tony Richardson is producer-director.

The Legal Aid Society, which will benefit from the project, offers legal help in all types of civil matters to persons who are unable to provide better than minimum living standards for themselves.

Carmel Lawyers' Wives helping on the ticket committee for the benefit are Mrs. Richard Wilson, Mrs. Thomson J. Hudson, and Mrs. George R. Walker.

FORTY-NINER DANCE

Carmel Post No. 512 of the American Legion will hold its annual Forty-Niner Dance on Saturday, 9 to 11 p.m., in the American Legion Hall. There will be plenty of food, refreshments and entertainment, also door prizes. A donation of $1.00 per person will be gratefully received. Jim ("Rinky-Dink") Kelsey is making arrangements for the music, and promises something lively.

CARMEL WOMAN'S CLUB

Harpist Joel Andrews will play at the general meeting of the Carmel Woman's Club on Monday, 3 December, at 2 p.m. Mr. Andrews a native of Santa Barbara, first harpist with the Oakland and Marin symphonies, is on the faculty of the San Francisco Conservatory of Music, and holds a master's degree in harp from the Cleveland Institute of Music. He has also played first harp with several other symphonies, and has arranged and composed music for solo harp.

Mr. Andrews founded the only annual harp festival in the country while head of the harp department at the University of Texas. This culminated in a national festival concert. Critics have written of his playing that he performs with brilliance and poetic feeling, and is a musician of stature.

A. F. A. DECORATION SHOW

The Monterey Peninsula chapter of the American Federation of Arts will hold a champagne preview of its annual Christmas decoration show and sale in the Party Room of the Mission Ranch on 7 December from 5 to 7 p.m. Over 75 original holiday creations will be offered, including the Little Picture Tree, displaying miniature paintings by well-known Peninsula artists. Also there will be an opportunity to acquire Mrs. Rip Matteson's outstanding creation featured last year and shown in the special holiday decorations issue of Better Homes and Gardens.

ST. DUNSTAN'S BAZAAR

Christmas gifts for persons of all ages, also original and unusual handmade holiday decorations, will be for sale Saturday at the bazaar being given by St. Dunstan's Episcopal Mission in the Community Center on Ford Road in Carmel Valley Village from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Mrs. Philip Walker is general chairman for the event.

GUIDE DOG COMMITTEE

Mrs. James H. Parks, chairman of the Monterey Peninsula committee of Guide Dogs for the Blind, has announced that the organization's annual benefit fashion show and tea will take place 12 February at Del Monte Lodge. Mrs. Thomas N. Bland has been named chairman for the show which will have as its theme Guide To Springtime.

Also announced was the appointment of David Wisnom, Jr., to the post of treasurer of the local Guide Dog committee. Mr. Wisnom, an assistant vice-president and manager of the Pebble Beach branch of Crocker-Anglo Bank, will assume the duties formerly discharged by Stafford Hughes.

Other volunteers who will serve as members of the board of directors for the 1963 term are Mrs. Thomas N. Bland, Mrs. Guy L. Cochran, Mrs. James S. Durage, Mrs. Eleanor M. Gann, Mrs. Olney Girard, Mrs. Patrick H. Hudgins, Mrs. Kenneth C. Krentz, Mrs. H. M. M. Nicholas, and Mrs. J. Vincent Otis. Mrs. James H. Parks is chairman of the Monterey committee. Miss Helen Heavey is vice-chairman and Miss Marion Kingsland, honorary chairman.

CHILDREN'S HOME SOCIETY

Saturday is the last day reservations may be made for the Holly Ball on 14 December at Del Monte Lodge. The affair will be sponsored by local chapters of the Children's Home Society to raise funds for its work as California's oldest adoption agency.

This year, Miss Holly, a doll the size of a three-year-old child, will be awarded at the ball to the holder of a lucky ticket. The doll has an elaborate wardrobe including the holly-trimmed red silk dress she will wear at the dance. Miss Holly is a fund-raising project of Littlebits chapter of the society. Tickets, 50 cents each, may be obtained by telephoning Mrs. Walter Stuefloren at MA 4-4504, Mrs. Cecil Paul at MA 4-6980, or any member of the chapter of which Mrs. John Rennels is president.

In addition, the winner of the doll may arrange to have it delivered free by a Santa Claus to any child on the Peninsula through members of Winnie the Pooh chapter of the society. Winnie the Pooh members will also arrange for Santa to visit any other child in this area for a small charge as their winter fund-raising project.

AUDUBON SOCIETY

The Monterey Peninsula Audubon Society will take a field trip in the Los Banos Waterfowl Area on Sunday. This annual event is scheduled when wintering waterbirds—ducks, geese, hawks, sandhill cranes and whistling swans—are at their best. Often as many as 50 species are identified in the refuge.

The group will meet at Tiny's restaurant on Highway 152 west of Los Banos and be ready to start at 10 a.m. There are motel accommodations near the meeting place for those who wish to stay overnight.

Interested persons, who are asked to bring their lunches, may call Captain Elgin Hurlbert, FR 2-2278, for further information.

KIWANIS

Captain Alfred Gardes, officer in charge of management curricula at the Naval Postgraduate School, spoke at the 21 November meeting of the Carmel Kiwanis Club on the importance of the United States Navy in maintaining world peace and holding Communism in check.

TOWN HOUSE

Larry Rose, editor of the Pine Cone, will speak Wednesday at 3 p.m. at Carmel Foundation Town House.

Mr. Rose will discuss Tea will follow the meeting. All interested persons are invited to attend.

City Learns Value Of Art In Memorial Museum

The City of Carmel-by-the-Sea owns unique and irreplaceable works of art conservatively valued for insurance purposes at $4,600. The donated pictures and sculptures are on exhibit in the city hall, mostly in the memorial art museum in the council chambers established through efforts of the arts commission. The memorial museum contains only the work of deceased local artists who have added lustre to the name of Carmel as an art center. The demand for these painters' work is such that their pictures now are almost impossible to obtain unless released for sale by a private collector. The portrait of the late John Catlin, a distinguished mayor of Carmel, cannot be replaced. The sculptured bust of the late famous poet, Robinson Jeffers of Carmel, is unique also because the sculptor, Arch Garner, has destroyed the mold from which the plaster head was cast. The picture of Hartnell School at Alisal by Ferdinand Burgdorff is irreplaceable because this historic California landmark has been razed by present owners of the land on which it stood.

The 8 works of art now owned by the city were recently valued by two members of the arts commission, Richard Lofton and Geza St. Galy. Both are artists and members of the Carmel Art Association. In order to set a value on the city's donated art collection for insurance purposes, they took into consideration the current value of similar work by the deceased artists, also the prices at which living artists now sell work such as they have given to the city. Conservative in their evaluations, they arrived at the $4,600 figure for which the city will insure its present art collection. The figure will increase with each donation to the memorial museum which is being augmented constantly through efforts of the arts commission.

Richard Lofton, member appointed by Chairman Marjorie Wurzmann to further this arts commission project, has been aided immeasurably by other commissioners. They have obtained for the council chambers the wood paneling display areas and lighting for the pictures now on exhibit by petitioning the city council.

In addition to commissioners already mentioned, others are Frederick Rider, Rupert Leach, Hazel McClellan, and ex officio member Glenn Kearns.

The works of art owned by the city and their evaluations are as follows: Portrait of John Catlin by Jonathan Scott, $800; bust of Robinson Jeffers by Arch Garner, $300; Point Lobos and Kelp Beds by Laura Maxwell, $400; Hartnell School at Alisal by Ferdinand Burgdorff, $400; Flocking Gulls by E. Cashion MacLennan, $400; Cypress, Point Lobos, by William Silva, $400; Golden Valley by Paul Mays, $800; Cypress by M. De Neale Morgan, $500; Mexican Girl by John O'Shea, $600.

In addition, the Carmel Art Association has loaned the city five paintings valued at $3,000. Exhibited in the city hall, these pictures are Maria and Telegraph Hill by Lee Randolph, $1,300; Drying Sails by Hoyland Bettinger, $400; A November Day by Frank Myers, $800.

JACOBS SHOW IN PALO ALTO

An exhibit of paintings by Ralph Jacobs, a young local artist, are being exhibited this month and through December on the third and fourth floors of the Palo Alto Medical Clinic.

A representational painter, he is of Armenian ancestry and was born in El Centro 22 years ago. At the age of 13 he began to paint while a student in Fresno schools. He moved to the Monterey Peninsula in 1959 and has studied with the late Abel G. Warshawsky, Frederic Taubes, and Evelyn Nadeau.

Ralph Jacobs paints exclusively in oils. He received an award for work shown at the Lodi Grape and Wine Festival, and has also exhibited widely, including South America and Lebanon. His most recent one-man show was at the Santa Cruz Art gallery and one of his pictures is in the current annual exhibition of the Western Society of Artists in San Francisco.

HIGH TWELVE

At tomorrow noon's meeting of the Carmel High Twelve Club, Dr. James D. Niebel will speak on Festive Theatre. All master Masons and sojourners are invited to attend.

Unique Group Show At Laky Galleries

European Holiday is the name of the show at the Laky Galleries on San Carlos Street through 15 December. Work by internationally known artists is included in this group exhibition, first of its kind in Carmel, although some of the pictures have been exhibited previously at the Laky Galleries in one-man shows.

The variety of canvases and watercolors presents landscape studies of Italy, England, Scotland, to name three of the European countries represented pictorially in divergent styles of representational painting.

The artists represented in the current Laky Galleries' show are William Ross Cameron, Michele Cascella, Michael Gergely, Jean-Pierre Jolifie-Conin, Emile Lahner, Richard Pearsall, Alice Stukensbroeker, Harry Timmins, Giorgio Valenzin, and Zita Laky.

BAY AREA ART EXHIBITS

The 22nd annual exhibition of the Society of Western Artists currently showing at the de Young Museum includes 79 oils, 40 watercolors, 20 pastels and graphic arts, and 18 sculptures by top-flight artists in each field, several of whom are from this area.

The Bolles Gallery in San Francisco is currently showing the paintings of James Boynton, while in Oakland, the California College of Arts and Crafts, Chapter of Delta Phi Delta, national art fraternity, is exhibiting the work of its members.

Where There's Life

By Andre Hope

In my happily endless search for interesting people, events, fun and food, I have encountered another pair, the which you'd never . . . They are Daffy Dave McElhatton and Friendly Clyde, the World's Worst Piano Player, who explode on KCBS radio every morning from 6 'til 10, and who dig Monterey Peninsula the most. Particularly Dave, who has been digging divots in most of our golf courses for several years. Clyde, I understand, is the master of the four iron, and no other. And what do they like for fun? Clyde (his real name is Homer Welsh) likes to look at his lovely wife, Lovely Veronica, play with his silky terrier, Tammy, and cook. He also likes stream and lake fishing, being from Oregon. Favorite recipe? Butterfly filets of beef, not busterflys. He marinates the steaks, sautes them in oil and adds them to a chafing dish in which he has made a sauce of butter, dry mustard, lemon juice, Worcester-shire sauce, salt and pepper; adds warmed cognac, lights it, bastes the steaks, and what more do you want? Clyde also likes to barbecue on an hibachi, set in his fireplace. He wondered, as we all do, what to do with the beautiful, glowing coals that always seem better after the food is cooked. Broil fruit for dessert over 'em, I say. Favorite restaurants include Omar Khayyam's, Le Boeuf, Tao Tao (Chinatown), and the Owl & Turtle, where, I am told to tell you, they serve a fantastic martini with pickled tomatoes instead of olives . . . Dave's favorite food is anything, anytime. Because his wife, Jeannie, is such a fantastic cook, he doesn't, except when she is flying in the Powder Puff Derby and he managed to sustain his three children and himself on egg sandwiches. Once when he was in school, he did admit to pinching a hole in a can of tamales and heating them up — for breakfast! What with the big-staggered gaggle of young he has at home (appropriately named "Chaos Corners"), they do not dine out often, but one favorite restaurant is Johnny Kan's in Chinatown. For relaxation (?) Dave skis on both water and snow and flies, presumably on air. If you can't break a record, break a leg, I always say, though I can't remember having said it lately. Their favorite spot on the Peninsula—Casa Munras. Dave got his start in show biz (who'd call it a "business") in the 6th grade by conning them into producing a marionette show, a production of a Wagner opera, yet! He was then described as a "David Belasco with diaper rash." Friendly Clyde, age seven, made his debut as an audience participant at a Chautauqua singing "I'm Forever Blowing Bubbles." Later, in school, he compounded the felony by leading a group known as "Welsh Rabbits" —tasty harmony! In spite of all this, they are very elegant gents . . . While on the subject of Peninsula-phile radio personalities, Owen Spann of KNBR (used to be KNCB) is conducting a flying holiday tour to London and Paris. It leaves 28 December and returns 13 January. The high spot is —what else—New Year's Eve in Paris. Wheeee! Live it up! Write to Owen. Knowing him, I'm sure it will be Le Bal!

Palo Colorado School teacher Mrs. Frank Bottero will return to her school next week after an absence of seven weeks. During that time, Mr. and Mrs. Bottero, of Malpas Creek, announced the arrival of a daughter, Cynthia. Substituting for Mrs. Bottero has been Mrs. La Vonn Curtis, regular substitute teacher for Palo Colorado, Big Sur and Pacific Valley schools. Mrs. Curtis and her husband, writer Jack Curtis, live in Big Sur with their four children, Mike, Lincoln, Melissa Jane, and Ross.

THE BIG SUR ROUNDUP, Big Sur's monthly newspaper, will begin its eighth year of publication in December. In the last month of 1955, the first issue was published as a project of the H. E. C., the women's auxiliary of the Grange, as a means of communicating with the members who were without telephones at that time. For the first two years the paper was circulated without charge, but as a demand for it increased, a charge of $2.00 per year was established to help cover the cost of paper, printing and postage. THE BIG SUR ROUNDUP now reaches nearly nearly 300 residents, and some non-residents of Big Sur. All of the news gathering and work of putting the paper together is donated by the Grange members.

A special showing of gift suggestions priced under $100 will be the feature of displays at the Coast Gallery, Big Sur, during the month of December.

A panel discussion led by Joe Adams, Willis W. Harmon, Paul S. Kurtz, and Myron J. Stolaroff will be held this weekend at Big Sur Hot Springs. The discussion is open to those who have attended the fall series of seminars.

Saturday, 8 December, at 8:00 p.m., Gregory Hitchcock will give poetry readings at the resort.

All About Harry, a special recording by Henry Miller, will be presented on Thursday evening, 13 December, at 8:30.

News From "Top of the World"

"First there was no night; now there's no day," wrote newly promoted Private First Class Joseph C. Zoellin, in a recent letter to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Zoellin of Carmel. Joe, who graduated from Carmel High School and entered the Army in April, 1960, taking his basic training at Fort Ord, is stationed in Thule, Greenland, at the "top of the world."

According to Mrs. Zoellin, the personnel spend most of their time reading. "We keep sending paperback books to Joe, and he keeps writing for more. He has also completed two extension courses, in history and English, which will give him 12 college credits." These are "live" courses, Mrs. Zoellin says, with instructors on the base. There was plenty of tension at Thule during the Cuban crisis, "and Joe wrote us that the men were 100 per cent behind President Kennedy's decision."

A cook in Battery B of the 55th Artillery, Joe has a brother, Jim, also two little sisters, Sylvia, seven, and Julie, four, who are both inclined to believe, their mother says, that their brother is in direct communication with the North Pole and Santa Claus.

Pfc. Zoellin's Army duty will be officially completed in April, but he has hopes of being released from the service in time to start the spring semester at Monterey Peninsula College.

Another Carmelite in Thule is Gunnar Reimers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Niels Reimers. He is a civilian engineer associated with the U.S. base in Greenland.

New Welcome Wagon Hostess

Mrs. W. W. Buckham (Alice) recently completed training in San Francisco to become the new local hostess for Welcome Wagon International. She has lived in Carmel for the past two and a half years. Her husband is associated with Aerojet-General Corporation. The Buckhams have four daughters attending Carmel schools.

In her Welcome Wagon community service program, Mrs. Buckham will call on newcomers in Carmel and Carmel Valley, also persons who move their residence within the area, and on the occasion of a new birth in any family or special occasions such as sixtieth and ninetieth birthdays or fiftieth wedding anniversaries. She will represent all social service agencies and forms of worship, and be sponsored by civic groups.

Miss Lindsay-Oliver Home

After a five-weeks trip to Great Britain, also attendance at the Music Critics' Association conference in New York, Miss Mary Lindsay-Oliver has resumed voice, piano and art instruction in her studio-home at the corner of San Carlos Street and Thirteenth Avenue.

She left Carmel early in September, visited in Washington, D.C., then boarded the Queen Elizabeth for an Atlantic crossing. After several days in London, Miss Lindsay-Oliver went north to paint commissioned portraits in Helensburgh and Gareloch; also visited relatives in the Scottish border country and Edinburgh. Traveling south again, she saw cousins in Coventry where the new cathedral, she reports, is drawing visitors from all over the world.

She spent a night in the 500-year-old Royal Hop Pole Inn in Tewkesbury, went on to Ringwood in the New Forest, where friends have recently bought an estate, before going to Southampton, and London again. Her nephew and godson, Major Kenneth Lindsay-Oliver, saw her off on the boat train when she left the English capital.

Miss Lindsay-Oliver arrived back in New York on 30 October and heard Charles Munch conduct his orchestra at Lincoln Center, new home of the New York Philharmonic. The four-day conference she attended was held in the center and attended by music critics from all over the United States and Canada. Mrs. Helen Thompson, executive secretary of the National Symphony League who comes to the Peninsula each year, was one of those who gave welcoming addresses. The critics, including Miss Lindsay-Oliver, attended performances as guests of the Metropolitan Opera, Civic Center and Philharmonic Society, a luncheon given by the New York Times in the newspaper's building, and a cocktail party at the home of John Hay Whitney, publisher of the New York Herald Tribune. Another cocktail party, followed by dinner, was given by the Philharmonic Society at the Tavern on the Green in Central Park.

At this affair, Miss Lindsay-Oliver was honored by being seated next to the society's president and host, David Keiser.

On her way West, she returned to Washington for a four-day stay and was welcomed at a National Symphony Orchestra concert by Howard Mitchell. A visit to Chicago offices of the Musical Leader magazine for which she has been a corresponding critic for many years, and which will publish her full report of the New York conference in its next issue, completed Miss Lindsay-Oliver's Eastern activities. By bus, she crossed the United States to Los Angeles and Carmel where she ended her "shoe-string journeying."

Music Recital

Margaret C. Aitkenhead presented a student recital in her home one recent evening. The program consisted of contemporary music—piano solos, organ works and arrangements for two pianos—of four European schools as well as South American, English and American compositions of the 20th century.

Students performing were Rochelle Madeira, Rhanda Nemer, Belen Domingo, Twig Stephenson, Ann Macahilig, Jean Israel, Holly Garcia, Robert Rabano, and Susan Rabano.

Refreshments were served to invited parents and guests.

Two Grandchildren in Two Days

Becoming a grandmother twice in two days is excitement enough, but Mrs. Evelyn Nidever Hildebrand's new granddaughter was born on Election Day, and her new grandson on her own birthday. Not only that, but her house was a polling place on 6 November, and as inspector she was housebound, counting votes, until noon the following day, only then being able to go to the Community Hospital and have her first glimpse of Yvonne Davida Hildebrand, whose parents are Carolyn and David Hildebrand of Pacific Grove. Yvonne is also the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pace of Monterey.

Two days later, 8 November, Matthew Nidever Hildebrand was born at the University of California Hospital in San Francisco to Brenda and Mark Hildebrand. Mrs. Hildebrand stayed with her daughter, Carol, in San Francisco, when she went up to visit her new grandson, and reports that Carol, a dancer, plans to go on tour to Berlin in the spring, and on around the world for the third time.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Swan of Monterey are also grandparents of young Matthew, and Leslie Swan of Monterey is his aunt. Mrs. John Lombardi (Laurel Dell Hildebrand) of San Francisco is an aunt of both newcomers.

Stevenson School Carnival

The Robert Louis Stevenson School's annual Christmas Carnival, which is a joint effort by the students at the school and the members of the Sponsors Club, held annually to raise money for the school, is planned for Saturday, 8 December.

Boys at the school serve hot dogs and hamburgers during the event, and there are home-baked delicacies on sale, a boutique filled with unusual gifts and decorations, both old and new books, fresh flowers and garden vegetables, and games of all types for all ages.

Mrs. Orland Caselli is president of the Sponsors Club, and Mrs. Peter Rand is chairman of the bazaar, which is scheduled from 11 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. on Saturday, 8 December.

Jean Geisen Is A Grandmother

Mrs. Jean O'Brien Geisen recently returned from a three weeks' visit with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Haire (Tony Hamilton), in Long Beach. While there, Mrs. Geisen became a first-time grandmother when Cameron O'Brien Haire was born 16 November.

The little girl has an aunt, Mrs.

Jonathan Persoff (Heather Hamilton), of New York City, and an uncle, Donald Geisen, of Carmel.

Ver Mehra Sali

Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph ver Mehr sailed from San Francisco on Sunday for two months in the Hawaiian Islands.

Among The Pines . . .James Family Reunion

There was a family reunion from north and south at the home of Mrs. D. L. James in Carmel Highlands over the Thanksgiving week end. Mrs. James's son, Daniel, and his wife, Lilith, drove up from Hollywood with their younger daughter, Kathy. Their older daughter and son-in-law, Barbara and Dan Willard, drove down from Davis, where Dan is working toward a Ph.D. in herpetology at the University of California, with their two small daughters, Martha and Ellen.

Friday evening during a cooperative "carcass (left-over turkey) party" at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Russell Williams, the Jameses and Willards gave an impromptu folk music concert with two guitars, one mandolin, one harmonica and four voices.

 Thanksgiving Reunion

Celebrating Thanksgiving at the home of her brother, Clarence Leigh, in Hillsborough, Mrs. Julian von Meier also had cause for celebration on Friday, when Hildegard von Meier joined her mother-in-law and uncle for the week end in Hillsborough en route from New Zealand to Berlin. Hildegard, wife of Kurt von Meier, senior lecturer in the history and theory of fine arts at the University of Auckland, will visit her parents, Professor Doctor and Mrs. K. W. Clauberg, for two or three weeks, before flying back to New Zealand. The Claubergs' home is on the Schlachtensee, a lake in a residential part of West Berlin; Mayor Willy Brandt lives right across the lake from them.

Hildegard had news of Carmelites Mrs. Edward Kuster and Miss Sophie Harpe, now on a South Pacific Cruise, who spent a recent week end in Auckland with the von Meiers.

 A Son For The De Amars

Their second child, a son named Richard Raymond, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Richard R. De Amaral on 7 December at the Community Hospital.

Richard has a sister, Diana Lynn, who was two years old on 27 September. Proud grandparents are Mrs. Mollie Collins of Bakersfield and Joe De Amaral of Seaside. A proud uncle is Frank De Amaral of Carmel Highlands.

 Carmel Valley Baby

Julia Diane is the name Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Cunningham (Barbara Giles) have chosen for their new daughter, who was born 14 November at the Community Hospital. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. William Giles of Carmel, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cunningham of Carmel Valley.

 Mrs. Cannon's Birthday Party

Sixty friends, also family members, gathered Saturday to honor Mrs. Anderson M. Cannon's birthday at a tea given by her daughters, Mrs. Robert Hughes of San Carlos, Mrs. Dennis Des Smra Duke of Oakland and Mrs. William Moores of Ukiah. Flowers and plants, many of them sent as birthday greetings, made the house on Carpenter Street which Mrs. Cannon shares with her sister, Mrs. John Withycombe, "a bower of beauty", Mrs. Cannon says. Blos-soms also were used to decorate the candlelit table on which stood the cake honoring the occasion.

Out-of-town members of Mrs. Cannon's family here for the celebration, in addition to her daughters, were her sons-in-law, nine grandchildren, six great-grandchildren, and her brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Jones of Salem, Oregon.

Mrs. Cannon and Mrs. Withycombe have lived in Carmel since 1949 and Mrs. Cannon is especially interested in the many musical events here.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERMON

The need for spiritual vigilance will be stressed at Christian Science church services this Sunday.

Keynoting the Lesson - Sermon entitled "Ancient and Modern Necromancy, alias Mesmerism, De-nounced" is the Golden Text from Romans: "If God be for us, who can be against us?"

One of the citations to be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy states (p. 324): "Be watchful, sober, and vigilant. The way is straight and narrow, which leads to the understanding that God is the only Life. It is a warfare with the flesh, in which we must conquer sin, sickness, and death, either here or hereafter,—certainly before we can reach the goal of Spirit, or life in God."

IT'S A SAD TRUTH OF THE REAL ESTATE BUSINESS THAT THE BEST BUY is often made when a seller is weakened by adversity of one kind or another. Right now, this week, you can NAME YOUR PRICE ON A NEW HOME WITH A PEBBLE BEACH ADDRESS. In this case, it is serious and prolonged illness in the owner's family which has prompted his instructions to us to "Bring me all offers, no matter how ridiculous they seem to you." Here is a wonderful family home with a panoramic view near the new hospital in the Del Monte Forest. It is a beautifully built, plastered, carpeted 4 bedroom, 3 bath home with family room, 2 fireplaces, and a fully equipped kitchen including intercom. There is an existing $35,000 loan which may be assumed. Someone is going to pick this up for very little down payment and have the bargain of the year. If you don't see this home and make your offer, you really aren't in the market for a house.

A HOME THAT EXEMPLIFIES EVERYTHING necessary for comfortable Carmel living . . . a view of the ocean and the hills; a sheltered patio; three bedrooms (one is suitable for a den); two baths; a dining-family room with rustic walls and fireplace; a spacious livingroom with cathedral ceiling, fireplace, bookshelves, and a VIEW! Practical features include central heating, a two-car garage with storage facilities, a new heavy shake roof, and complete fencing. Shown by appointment.

LOT FOR SALE . . . Near Pebble Beach Lodge, in an area of distinctive homes. Owner will consider trading this .71 acre building site for a small Carmel-area cottage.

SOME TRADITIONAL ATMOSPHERE pervades this charming all-on-one-floor home with a picturesque view of the Mission and Point Lobos. A lavish use of rose brick, a heavy shake roof and a covered walkway are combined with California Colonial interior details to provide authentic Carmel charm. A large livingroom with random oak pegged floors leads to a separate diningroom; the tiled kitchen includes a special breakfast area, and the central hall offers access to three bedrooms, (one opening to the patio-garden) and two baths. The super-sized double garage includes laundry facilities and workbench.
